

VELUSE AGENCY STANDARD OPERATING PROCEDURE (SOP) DEPARTMENT:

Revenue Architecture & Enterprise Marketing SUBJECT: The "US vs. THEM" & Contrast Advertising Protocol PURPOSE: To establish Veluse Agency's elite copywriting framework for dismantling "Big Corporate" marketing firms and slow, traditional SaaS competitors. When we are competing against massive, entrenched Goliaths for Enterprise Med Spa accounts, we cannot simply claim to be "better." We must polarize the market. This SOP dictates how we weaponize the "Us vs. Them" contrast strategy—modeled after Ryan Reynolds' billion-dollar Mint Mobile campaigns—using humor, transparency, and stark contrast to render our competitors completely obsolete.

PART 1: THE "US VS. THEM" CONTRARIAN HOOK

The "Us vs. Them" strategy is best employed when you are the challenger or the underdog taking on the massive market leader 1. We do not try to out-corporate the corporate giants; we attack their bloat directly.

The most powerful way to hook a prospect's attention is by drawing an immediate, sharp contrast between our infrastructure and their current, frustrating provider 1, 2. The contrarian hook relies on exposing the flaws the prospect already hates about the incumbent 2.

The Veluse Execution: We open our VSLs and ad copy by directly stating the opposite nature of our operations.

- Mint Mobile Example: "At Mint Mobile, we like to do the opposite of what big wireless does. They charge you a lot, we charge you a little" 2, 3.
- Veluse Agency Application: "At traditional Med Spa agencies, they like to do the opposite of what Veluse does. They spend 90 days building a bloated marketing strategy, and we deploy a fully autonomous AI-booking agent in 48 hours."

PART 2: THE REVERSE VALUE EQUATION (THE NIGHTMARE SCENARIO)

To make the corporate competitor look obsolete, we must deploy the "Reverse Value Equation" 4. In our copy, we must make the benefits of our service look as big as possible, while aggressively amplifying the "nightmare scenario" (the costs, delays, and friction) associated with the competitor 4.

We clearly define that staying with the competitor means "more bad stuff and less good stuff," while switching to Veluse means "less bad stuff and more good stuff" 5.

The Obsolete Competitor Narrative: We explicitly highlight how Big Corporate agencies view the Med Spa owner. To them, the client is just a number 6. We tell the prospect the brutal truth: if they go with the massive agency, they will never speak to the founder, they will be handed off to a junior account rep who clocks in and out, and they will be suffocated by slow corporate red tape 6-8.

Conversely, Veluse Agency provides direct access to elite infrastructure and aggressive dedication. We frame the comparison not as "Our company vs. Their company," but as "Our elite, motivated execution vs. Employee #86 at their agency who doesn't care if your Med Spa fails" 8.

PART 3: WEAPONIZING HUMOR AND TRANSPARENCY

Big Corporate agencies hide behind polished jargon and massive ad budgets. We defeat them by using radical transparency and humor to make their spending look ridiculous and wasteful.

The "Spiffy Stock Footage" Tactic: Ryan Reynolds brilliantly attacked big wireless companies by mocking their massive advertising budgets during the holidays 9. He stated, "At Mint, we're not into wasting money, so we bought this spiffy stock footage for $500," seamlessly transitioning into the fact that by not wasting money on ads, they pass the savings directly to the customer 9, 10.

The Veluse Transparency Play: We do not hide our operational efficiencies; we brag about them. We use "damaging admissions" to gain trust 11-13.

- Copy Example: "We don't have a fancy, multi-million dollar corporate office in Manhattan, and we don't hire 'Account Happiness Managers' to take you to golf outings. We are a lean team of AI-engineers and direct-response killers. Because we don't waste your retainer on bloated overhead, 100% of your capital goes directly into acquiring high-ticket Med Spa patients."

Furthermore, we use humor to highlight the absurdity of the competitor's actions. When competitors raise prices, we mock it. Mint Mobile famously stated, "Naturally, when they announced they'd be raising their prices due to inflation, we decided to deflate our prices due to not hating you" 14. The underlying theme is always: They hate their customers, and we love our customers 15.

PART 4: THE B2B CONTRAST COPYWRITING BLUEPRINT

When scripting Veluse Agency ads against slow, traditional competitors, our marketing team will follow this exact structure 1, 16:

1. The Contrarian Hook (Call Out the Enemy): "Big marketing agencies love to charge you $10,000 a month just to 'manage' your Facebook page. We think that's a scam." 1, 2
2. The Damaging Admission / Transparency: "We aren't a traditional agency. We don't have ping-pong tables in the breakroom, and we won't send you a fruit basket on your birthday." 9, 12, 13
3. The Reverse Value Equation (The Pivot): "What we do have is a proprietary AI-infrastructure that books patients into your calendar while you sleep. They offer you slow, manual labor. We offer you instantaneous, automated revenue." 4, 5
4. The Absurdity Punchline (Humor): "So, if you want to pay for a junior ad-buyer's health insurance, go with them. If you want to scale to $1M/month, let's talk." 14, 15

By combining stark contrast, radical transparency, and humor, we do not just compete with the Goliath in our space—we actively dismantle their perceived authority and position Veluse as the only logical, modern solution for the Enterprise Med Spa 8, 17.
