

VELUSE AGENCY STANDARD OPERATING PROCEDURE (SOP) DEPARTMENT:

Content Engineering & Media Buying (The Eyeball Factory) SUBJECT: The Viral Hook & Headline Matrix

PURPOSE: To establish Veluse Agency's absolute standard for engineering, deploying, and split-testing advertisement headlines. The headline is the single highest-leverage point of failure or success in our Med Spa AI-infrastructure client acquisition. We do not rely on creative guessing; we deploy strict, mathematically proven formulas to build the "wrapper" that gets the click and drives high-ticket cash flow.

PART 1: THE MAGIC HEADLINE FORMULA (THE 3-PART BANNER)

In advertising, the headline is the first sale. As David Ogilvy stated, once you have written your headline, you have spent 80 cents of your advertising dollar 1, 2. The vast majority of people will only see the headlines of what you make, meaning a killer headline can absolutely outperform a control ad by two to five times 3, 4.

For local brick-and-mortar marketing, specifically in our Med Spa verticals, the core offer rarely changes. Instead, we must continuously change the headline to re-engage the market 5, 6. Every top-performing banner headline must be engineered using a strict, three-part formula: Duration + Benefit/Result + Power Word 6, 7.

1. Duration (The Time Interval): This sets the expectation for how long the results will take to achieve 7, 8. Fast results decrease the "Time Delay" in the Value Equation, massively increasing the perceived value 9. Examples: 21-Day, 6-Week, 48-Hour, 1-Month 6, 10.

2. Benefit / Result (The Goal): This is the dream outcome articulated in the prospect's exact words. We must sell the "vacation," not the "plane flight" 11, 12. The benefit should address their specific pain points, such as looking younger, losing weight, or clearing skin 13. Examples: Drop 2 Dress Sizes, Clear Skin, Reverse Aging, Skinny Friend, Flawless Face 13.

3. Power Word (The Container): The container word denotes that this offer is a bundle of many things put together into a proprietary system 10. It implies that the service cannot be compared to a commoditized alternative 10. Examples: Blueprint, Bootcamp, Intensive, Accelerator, Challenge, Transformation, Masterclass, System 7, 10.

PART 2: THE VELUSE PLUG-AND-PLAY HEADLINE MATRIX

To eliminate creative drag, Veluse media buyers must utilize this plug-and-play matrix to instantly generate hyper-converting Med Spa headlines. Select one item from each column to build the core banner headline.

Component 1: DURATION, Component 2: BENEFIT / RESULT, Component 3: POWER WORD / CONTAINER

14-Day, Flawless Skin, Accelerator
21-Day, Post-Baby Body, Blueprint
28-Day, Reverse Aging, Challenge
6-Week, Drop 2 Belt Notches, Intensive
8-Week, Wrinkle-Free, Masterclass
90-Day, Mommy Makeover, Transformation
12-Week, ""Skinny Friend"", System

Matrix Application Example: "28-Day Reverse Aging Blueprint" or "6-Week Post-Baby Body Transformation".

Note: The advertisement copy immediately above or below this banner headline must always include a polarizing "Call Out" to the specific avatar (e.g., "Attention City Moms") to ensure we grab the attention of the exact demographic we want to target 14-16.

PART 3: ISOLATING AND SPLIT-TESTING THE "WRAPPER"

Amateur marketers believe that when an ad stops converting, they must fundamentally change the service they are selling 17, 18. Elite marketers know that the core business remains unchanged; we only change how we package the service so the prospect perceives it differently 17, 18. We call this changing the "wrapper" 19.

To maximize our return on ad spend (ROAS) and drastically lower the Cost to Acquire a Customer (CAC) for our Med Spa clients, we must systematically isolate and split-test headlines without destroying our core creative assets.

1. The "Same Core Offer, Different Wrapper" Protocol:When a campaign fatigues, we do not invent a new Med Spa delivery process 5, 20. We keep the core offer the same but change the wrapper based on seasonality or a new angle 20, 21. For example, a "Free 6-Week Lean Challenge" becomes a "Free 6-Week Tone Challenge," and a "Holiday Hangover" promotion transitions into a "New Year New You" promotion 19, 20. This allows us to re-stimulate local demand without incurring the operational drag of changing the backend fulfillment 5.

2. Decoupling the Headline from the Creative:The headline on the ad banner does not actually need to be specific to the underlying video or image creative 22. You can take a winning video of Med Spa clients undergoing treatment and simply swap the text above it. Once you find a piece of creative that converts, you can recycle it endlessly by testing dozens of different headlines against it to find the highest-converting combination 22-24.

3. The Weekly Split-Test Mandate:Veluse Agency enforces a strict cadence: we execute exactly one split test per week 25. We focus 90% of our testing strictly on the headline or the image immediately beneath it (above the fold) 25, 26. By maintaining the exact same advertisement structure and simply split-testing the headline on the landing page, we isolate the variable to see exactly what drives the click. In one portfolio company, simply changing the headline on the landing page while keeping the same ads increased the booking rate by 62% 27, 28.

By utilizing this viral matrix and relentlessly split-testing the "wrapper," Veluse Agency maintains a monopoly on local Med Spa attention, allowing us to continuously drive down acquisition costs and scale client revenue predictably 25, 27, 29.