

VELUSE AGENCY STANDARD OPERATING PROCEDURE (SOP) DEPARTMENT:

Revenue Architecture & Continuity Systems SUBJECT: The Skool / Paid Community

PURPOSE: To establish Veluse Agency's operational mandate for building high-margin, ultra-sticky backend recurring revenue. Whether we are building a community for our Med Spa clients to retain their VIP patients, or scaling our own BioOps software ecosystem, we must eliminate the lethal mistake of "over-delivering" content. This SOP deconstructs the exact $99/month "Skool Games" architecture to minimize structural churn, maximize engagement, and fiercely protect the founder's mystique.

PART 1: THE $99/MO DELIVERABLE MATRIX (CURING OVERWHELM)

Amateur community builders believe that to charge $99/month, they must stuff their platform with daily content, hundreds of hours of courses, and endless live calls. This is a fatal scaling error. The number one reason people cancel a community is overwhelm 1, 2. When members feel they cannot keep up with the volume of information, they experience guilt, assume they are wasting their money, and churn 3.

To win the subscription game, we must provide "value per second rather than seconds of value" 2. We must follow the exact, hyper-lean architecture deployed in the $99/month Skool Games, which boasts tens of thousands of members 4, 5.

The Mandatory $99/mo Deliverable Stack:

- One Core Course (<45 Minutes): Do not build a massive, multi-week curriculum. The Skool Games relies on exactly eight short videos that total less than 45 minutes combined 4, 5. It is fast, consumable, and immediately actionable.
- One Weekly Call: We host exactly one group Q&A or coaching call per week 4, 5.
- One Monthly Mastermind Download: Once a month, the founder drops a single, high-impact asset (e.g., a deep-dive training or a recorded masterclass from top performers) 4, 5.

By limiting the deliverables to "one call, one course, one mastermind a month," the offer is incredibly easy to explain, impossible to fall behind on, and drastically reduces the operational drag on Veluse Agency and our Med Spa partners 4, 5.

PART 2: THE RULES OF "FOUNDER ACCESS" & MYSTIQUE

Communities approximate access; they are a fractionalized slice of the founder's time 2, 6. However, if the founder (or the Med Spa Medical Director) shows up too frequently, they commoditize themselves. If you are the leader of a massive community and you do Q&As every single day, you lose your power because your presence is no longer special 5, 7. To preserve authority and prevent executive burnout, "Founder Access" must be strictly governed by the following rules:

- The "Meeting" Cadence: The founder treats the community exactly like a corporate meeting. You show up for the one scheduled weekly call, answer questions, and immediately exit 8, 9.
- The 2x/Month Spontaneous Post: The founder does not operate on a grueling daily content schedule inside the community. Instead, you poke around the forums, observe what problems the community is repeatedly struggling with, and write one or two highly thoughtful, long-form posts per month solving that exact bottleneck 7, 10-12.

- The Reward System: The founder's direct attention is weaponized as a reward. You do not respond to everyone. You selectively DM and publicly praise the "super users" who contribute the most value 13, 14. This creates a hierarchy where members actively compete to earn your attention, driving up the quality of the entire ecosystem 11, 13, 14.

PART 3: CULTURE OVER CLASSROOM (ENGAGEMENT PROTOCOLS)

We have data proving that building a course has absolutely no correlation with retaining a customer 15. People come for the education, but they stay for the connections 16-18. If a member has five friends inside the community, they will never cancel, even if you stop producing content 19, 20.

The Veluse Engagement Playbook:

- Hide the Classroom: When launching a new community, hide the course/classroom tab initially 15. Force new members to engage with the group feed before they can passively consume videos.
- The 3-Post Onboarding: We require every new member to make simple, low-friction posts to break the ice. Ask them to share: 1) Where they are from, 2) Something they do for fun, and 3) A photo of their workspace or desk 21, 22. This creates immediate, organic conversation as members spot similarities and connect 21.
- Pinning Member Wins (Not Founder Posts): To establish the rules of what behavior is rewarded, do not pin your own announcements at the top of the community. Pin the best posts, case studies, or wins generated by your members 13, 23. This puts them on a literal pedestal and incentivizes the rest of the community to produce high-tier content in hopes of being featured 13, 23.

PART 4: THE "FREE-TO-PAID" SKOOL FUNNEL

For our Med Spa client acquisition (or selling our own high-ticket BioOps installations), we use Skool as the ultimate top-of-funnel conversion mechanism.

Instead of driving ad traffic to a static landing page, we drive traffic to a Free Skool Community 24. Because the barrier to entry is zero, conversion rates on the opt-in page skyrocket to roughly 80% 25, 26.

Once they join the free community, the funnel executes automatically:

1. The Auto-DM: As soon as they enter, they receive an automated Direct Message welcoming them and instructing them to check the "Start Here" module 26, 27.
2. The Disguised Webinar: The "Start Here" pinned post directs them to a short course in the classroom tab. This course is actually a 4-part webinar broken into smaller videos, designed to shatter limiting beliefs and indoctrinate them into our methodology 25, 27, 28.
3. The Conversion: At the end of the module, we pitch a booked call 26, 28. On this call, our sales team either closes them on our $25,000+ high-ticket DFY infrastructure, or we drop them into the $99/month paid community where they continue to be nurtured until they are ready to buy the premium offer 28, 29.
